

Erasmus + mobilité internationale de crédits 2019-2022 Mobilités étudiantes

Yara AMINE
(Université Libanaise)

The Erasmus + program gave me the opportunity to travel to France and continue my studies in Data Sciences. I studied on campus for 4 months and, for the 2nd semester, I did my research internship (5 months) at Laboratoire des Sciences du Numérique de Nantes (LS2N). Erasmus + has opened doors for me to get accepted for a Phd position, to be funded by the Cifre initiative. I made a lot of beautiful memories in this mobility year which makes me forever thankful for this experience.

Maria OUNDJIAN
(Université Libanaise)

Doing my 6 months internship in a Research Lab specialized in cancer studies was a very important step in my academic journey since I learned a lot and it would indeed open more doors for me in the future. The Erasmus + program made it possible for me to pursue my studies in a field I am passionate about. Nantes is a very lovely city to live in, full of life and nice people. This was a nice experience in which I also had the chance to evolve on a personal level, as I gained in confidence and independence.

ALI EL BIZRI
(Université Libanaise)

My internship took place at the Center for Research in Transplantation and Immunology (UMR 1064) with Professor Dorian McIlroy. The benefits of this mobility were immense : learning the ins and outs of working in a research lab, navigating a scientific project, being able to improve my scientific communication skills and also my general public speaking skills. Finally, Nantes was a fantastic city to stay at and given the right opportunity would definitely consider moving back there.

Manin LY
(Royal University of Law and Economics)

The opportunity offered through Erasmus + matched with my academic background in the field of economics and management. I expected to enrich my knowledge, culture, and experience as a student living abroad. It was easier than I ever imagined, it was my first time moving out of home and coming to France to study. The Erasmus + program granted me the opportunity to enrich my academic knowledge, to improve my communication, to deal with change in culture, environment, and workplace. It is truly a life changing experience.
